

To Whom it May Concern:

I highly recommend Ryan Isaac Spevack as an asset to your company; whether it's involved with production or marketing. He brings not only skills in production to the table, but also highly valuable marketing skills as well, which is needed after the production is completed. He has put together a great team on every production I've worked with him on. He is determined to get the job done. He is resourceful, and always completes the projects under budget and on-schedule. I have found him to be a great leader and manager in shepherding each project to completion from pre through post production. Communication with him has been great throughout the entire process.

As a friend Ryan is generous and always dependable, qualities that are hard to find. I look forward to working with him on many projects in the future.

Sincerely,

Edward Mendoza, Director/Editor, Los Angeles
